140TH SESSION OF U. B. CHURCH SET FOR OCT 8-11

Adams County Has Four U. B. Pastors; One In Gettysburg.

SERVED 6 YEARS

Arrangements have been completed for the 140th session of the Church of the Brethren in Christ which will be held at Calvary United Brethren church, Lemoyne, the Rev. J. H. Lehman, pastor, October 8 to 11.

Adams county has four United Brethren pastors who will attend the conference. They are the Rev. F. L. Stine, Gettysburg; the Rev. C. M. Ankerbrand, Biglerville; the Rev. A. C. Crone, Gardners, and the Rev. Leroy L. Perry, pastor of the Heidlersburg U. B. church.

All of the four ministers are expected to be returned to their present pastorates in the county. At a recent congregational meeting, 81 per cent of the membership of the Gettysburg United Brethren congregation voted for the return of the Rev. Mr. Stine.

Six Years Here

On Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Stine will have rounded out six years as pastor of Memorial United Brethren church here. In the past year, has reported 25 accessions to the church, more than in any of the preceeding years of his pastorate. At the same time, the church's finances have been considerably improved.

The coming conference is expected to be an important one in view of the fact that changes made at the last meeting of the general conference of the church at Lancaster last May will have to be adopted by the Pennsylvania conference. At the Lancaster conference the United Brethren church took a forward step in religious educational work, combining its Sunday school, Christian Endeavor, colleges and theological seminary work under a board of religious education. Pennsylvania conference has a large place in that board, having two representatives, the Rev. Dr. F. B. Plummer and the Rev. Dr. M. R. Fleming.

Bishop Presides

Bishop G. D. Batdorf will preside at the sessions. Other officers include the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Fultz, conference superintendent; the Rev. J. H. Lehman, host; the Rev. W. M. Beattie, recording secretary; the Rev. E. W. Leech, statistical secretary, and the Rev. G. A. Heiss, treasurer.

The Rev. Mr. Crone will give a report for the committee on evangelism at the Wednesday evening session of the conference.

Tag Applications Are Being Mailed

The Bureau of Motor Vehicles the first of the month began mailing applications for 1930 automobile license plates. A special force of operatives has been "stuffing" applications into envelopes and "working" hundreds of thousands of pieces of mail so as to expedite passage through the mails. Under a ruling from postoffice headquarters at Washington the Bureau henceforth must see to it that applications for a town or city are "bunched" before going to the postoffice. The Bureau's force is being aided by retired railway clerks whose knowledge is of great benefit. As is well known, 1930 license plates may be used December 15.

"Motor car owners who have moved during the last year, and who have failed to notify us of their change of address, will not receive an application unless postoffice authorities in their home towns forward the card," said Commissioner Ben G. Eynon today. "To avoid delay, I suggest that these people notify us immediately of change in address.

M'NAB'S POWER IS FORTIFIED

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP).—President Hoover has fortified his one man commission, John McNab, of San Francisco, with broad and extensive authority for his coming study of legislative ways and means of achieving a centralized responsibility in federal enforcement of prohibition laws.

McNab is to have a free hand. He will pursue his inquiries as he thinks best calling upon the treasury and justice department and the law enforcement commission for such assistance as he feels necessary.

McNab is to determine how the treasury's prohibition bureau can best be lifted from that department and placed in the department of justice.

FOUR INCHES OF RAIN FALL IN TWO DAY STORM

Precipitation Is Heaviest In Months; Water Overflows Onto Roads.

STREAMS HIGH

Cessation of the torrential rain that deluged Gettysburg and Adams county for forty-eight hours, a brisk northwest wind and bright sunshine today were welcomed by local residents after two dismal and unpleasant days.

The rain which stopped falling during the night, established a record of 3.58 inches from 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon until 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, according to Dr. Henry Stewart, local weather observer.

Streams Overflowed

Before the rain ceased, streams in Adams county were over their banks at many places. In some places, water from the streams covered highways, but traffic was able to proceed through the inundated sections.

Although the precipitation here was heavier in the 24 hours from Tuesday afternoon to Wednesday afternoon than any time in recent months, nearby counties suffered more from high waters than did Adams county. In York, schools were dismissed at noon, Wednesday for the day, and in the lower end of York county, a funeral cortege was held up by high water over a road.

Extend Hanover Fair

At Hanover, where the fair is in progress this week, the directors held a special meeting, Wednesday, at which it was decided to extend the fair through Saturday.

At Harrisburg, 3.45 inches of rain fell from 8 o'clock, Tuesday evening, to 8 o'clock, Wednesday evening, and the Susquehanna river was rising steadily, although no unusually high stage is expected inasmuch as that river was very shallow before the rain.

The rain was general throughout Pennsylvania and the eastern seacoast states.

FOUR DEAD IN STRIKE RIOT

Governor's Representative Conducts Inquiry; Guardsmen Maintain Peace.

Marion, N. C., Oct. 3 (AP).—The number of dead from the textile mill riot here yesterday was brought to four today when Luther Bryson, 22 year old union member, died from bullet wounds.

Two companies of national guardsmen were on duty today to keep order at the cotton mills as authorities proceeded with investigation of the riot yesterday.

The coroner's jury, impaneled to inquire into the slayings of the men who went on strike yesterday, viewed the bodies last night. The inquest then was recessed until today. A total of 21 persons were injured in the riot.

Besides the coroner's jury, Nat A Townsend, executive counsel to Governor O. Max Gardner, who on September 11 settled a 9 weeks strike, arrived here late last night to investigate the riot for the governor.

There had been rumblings of dissatisfaction for some time on the part of union men who claimed the strike agreement of September 11 had not been kept by the management of the Marion mill.

WRONG HUNCH BRINGS ARREST

John Messersmith Was Too Suspicious Of Officer; Loses Car And Liquor.

York, Oct. 3 (AP).—John Messersmith, alleged by police to be the agent for moonshiners and bootleggers, fled this morning when no one pursued him. As a result police have in their possession an automobile with 12 five gallon cans of liquor.

Messersmith parked his car along a curb. Glancing back he saw a policeman approaching. Without waiting he jumped from his car and fled. The policeman, surprised by the man's action, looked in the man's machine. There he found the liquor.

Messersmith is on parole from a sentence of six month in jail and $500 fine imposed last January. He was arrested then when a moonshine plant was exposed by the accidental killing of his son, Joyce. 67 CANS OF BASS PLACED

Local Sportsmen Receive Five Consignments From State Fish Hatchery.

Sixty-seven cans of bass were shipped to county sportsmen in September for distribution in three creeks in the county, according to information received this morning by Edward L. Weikert, former Adams county representative in the house of delegates, from N. R. Buller, commissioner of fisheries.

Mr. Buller informed Mr. Weikert, who secured the applications for the cans of bass for the local fishermen, that one shipment to Ivan L. Collins, of Table Rock, was returned by the superintendent of the hatchery when Mr. Collins failed to reply to shipping notices.

Those who applied and received their shipments are:

Charles B. Dougherty, 15 cans for deposit in Marsh Creek; Charles W. Gardner, 20 cans for deposit in Bermudian Creek; Dr. E. H. Markley, 17 cans for deposit in Marsh Creek; Leo Miller, five cans for deposit in Marsh Creek, and J. H. Macbeth, of Asers, ten cans for deposit in Opossum Creek. SNYDER RULED OUT OF CONTEST

Former State Official Fails To File Judgeship Papers Within Time Limit.

Harrisburg, Oct. 3 (AP).—Nomination papers naming District Attorney Charles A. Snyder, of Schuylhill, as democratic nominee for judge of the Schuylkill Common Pleas court were rejected today on the grounds that they had not been filed in time.

Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods ruled the petition, received late last night at the state bureau of elections, was not filed within the period, thirty-five days previous to the November election. He ordered George B. Throne, chief of the bureau, to refuse to accept the petition.

Snyder, a republican and former state treasurer and former auditor general, made a flying trip to the capitol last night to file the papers after he had been named as the nominee of the democratic party for the judgeship to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of former H. O. Bechtel from the democratic nomination. Bechtel withdrew yesterday and the county democratic committee met at once to select Snyder.

Bechtel's withdrawal and the attorney general's ruling today leaves Judge Henry Houck, appointee of Governor Fisher and son of Snyder's political enemy, Paul W. Houck, unopposed for the post at the general election next month.

New York, Oct 3 (AP).—A Manhattan bookkeeper, earning $50 a week, whose system of account juggling was so clever that expert accountants were unable to find the losses he is alleged to have caused his company, was among the prisoners in the police line-up Thursday.

FOUR DEAD IN STRIKE RIOT

Governor's Representative Conducts Inquiry; Guardsmen Maintain Peace.

Marion, N. C., Oct. 3 (AP).—The number of dead from the textile mill riot here yesterday was brought to four today when Luther Bryson, 22 year old union member, died from bullet wounds.

Two companies of national guardsmen were on duty today to keep order at the cotton mills as authorities proceeded with investigation of the riot yesterday.

The coroner's jury, impaneled to inquire into the slayings of the men who went on strike yesterday, viewed the bodies last night. The inquest then was recessed until today. A total of 21 persons were injured in the riot.

Besides the coroner's jury, Nat A Townsend, executive counsel to Governor O. Max Gardner, who on September 11 settled a 9 weeks strike, arrived here late last night to investigate the riot for the governor.

There had been rumblings of dissatisfaction for some time on the part of union men who claimed the strike agreement of September 11 had not been kept by the management of the Marion mill.

John Messersmith Was Too Suspicious Of Officer; Loses Car And Liquor.

York, Oct. 3 (AP).—John Messersmith, alleged by police to be the agent for moonshiners and bootleggers, fled this morning when no one pursued him. As a result police have in their possession an automobile with 12 five gallon cans of liquor.

67 CANS OF BASS PLACED

Local Sportsmen Receive Five Consignments From State Fish Hatchery.

Sixty-seven cans of bass were shipped to county sportsmen in September for distribution in three creeks in the county, according to information received this morning by Edward L. Weikert, former Adams county representative in the house of delegates, from N. R. Buller, commissioner of fisheries.

Mr. Buller informed Mr. Weikert, who secured the applications for the cans of bass for the local fishermen, that one shipment to Ivan L. Collins, of Table Rock, was returned by the superintendent of the hatchery when Mr. Collins failed to reply to shipping notices.

Those who applied and received their shipments are:

Charles B. Dougherty, 15 cans for deposit in Marsh Creek; Charles W. Gardner, 20 cans for deposit in Bermudian Creek; Dr. E. H. Markley, 17 cans for deposit in Marsh Creek; Leo Miller, five cans for deposit in Marsh Creek, and J. H. Macbeth, of Asers, ten cans for deposit in Opossum Creek. The shipment to Mr. Macbeth contained the largest fish. They were from six to ten inches long.

SNYDER RULED OUT OF CONTEST

Former State Official Fails To File Judgeship Papers Within Time Limit.

Harrisburg, Oct. 3 (AP).—Nomination papers naming District Attorney Charles A. Snyder, of Schuylhill, as democratic nominee for judge of the Schuylkill Common Pleas court were rejected today on the grounds that they had not been filed in time.

Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods ruled the petition, received late last night at the state bureau of elections, was not filed within the period, thirty-five days previous to the November election. He ordered George B. Throne, chief of the bureau, to refuse to accept the petition.

Snyder, a republican and former state treasurer and former auditor general, made a flying trip to the capitol last night to file the papers after he had been named as the nominee of the democratic party for the judgeship to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of former H. O. Bechtel from the democratic nomination. Bechtel withdrew yesterday and the county democratic committee met at once to select Snyder.

Bechtel's withdrawal and the attorney general's ruling today leaves Judge Henry Houck, appointee of Governor Fisher and son of Snyder's political enemy, Paul W. Houck, unopposed for the post at the general election next month.

Flooded Roads Cause Change In Musical Program

Impassable roads below York, which made it impossible for the accompanist to get to Gettysburg, necessitated an entire change in the program of the concert by the students of Elisabeth Good Flaig in the lobby of the Hotel Gettysburg Wednesday evening.

An impromptu musicale of about three-quarters of an hour duration was substituted and delighted Gettysburg music lovers who attended.

The program rendered was as follows:

Delriego's Homing and Come to the Fair, by Myrtle Brown; Pale Moon and On the Road to Mandalay, by Percy Einsig; When Love is Kind, by Louise Einsig; Bizet's I Am Alone in the Night, by Violet Mitzell; I Passed By Your Window, by Mrs. William Welty; Water-Boy, by Mary Good Geiselman; Parla, Arditti's last Waltz, by Elisabeth Good Flaig.

Juggles Accounts To Baffle Experts

New York, Oct 3 (AP).—A Manhattan bookkeeper, earning $50 a week, whose system of account juggling was so clever that expert accountants were unable to find the losses he is alleged to have caused his company, was among the prisoners in the police line-up Thursday.

Troubled by his conscience, William Thalf, of Long Island City, surrendered to the police in Chicago, September 14.

Amount Involved $14,000

It was reported that he confessed to having embezzled $14,000 from his employers, the J. George Grill company.

He used the money to bet on horse races, he said.

Unable To Find Shortages

Accountants employed by the firm were unable to find any shortages, and, police assert, it was necessary for them to communicate with Thalf to learn his system.

THIS IS PARIS

PLAYS FROM ABROAD

By Hazel Reavis

Paris—There was a time when New York drew on Paris for many of its Broadway divertisements but but the shoe now covers the other foot as American productions grow is vogue in show houses here.

There are a handful of American and English shows running now and others will be added when the theatrical season reopens. Some of them are bearded with age; others are new.

"Rose Marie" is closing after a three-year run in which it gave more than a thousand and one performances to enthusiastic audiences.

"Hit the Deck" under the nickname of "Hallelujah" will take the place of the musical comedy at the Mogador theater. Its name-song is already a favorite all over France and a part of the phonograph repertoire of jazz-loving French homes. Like "Romona" the "Hallelujah" chorus goes on and on and to the French way of thinking, only becomes more popular with age.

French theater goers, unlike American, like old tunes in their new shows. They are great songsters, and a good tune has a long life in France where everybody sings and nearly everybody can "render a ditty."

Another foreign favorite is "The Trial of Mary Dugan" which recently resumed a long run interrupted by summer closing.

On In Summer

In spite of heat and vacation exodus, "The Ghost Train," in a French translation, went right on playing all summer long. So did the English version of the play "Maya" banned in America. The English players here headed by Edward Sterling are having an outstanding success in "Journey's End" which had it Paris premiere in May.

"Front Page" the American newspaper thriller, is promised Paris shortly in a French translation. Other plays in preparation or prospect at Boulevard theaters are "The Shanghai Gesture," "Street Scene," and "Burlesque."

At the Sarah Bernhardt Theater, "Desert Song" is scheduled as the autumn opener and across the Place du Chatelet, "New Moon," rechristened "The Pirate," will succeed "Around the World in Eighty Days."

Street Singers

France certainly earns its reputation for song, even if it borrows many of them from abroad.

It is not the "songs of the peepul" that are borrowed. They still come from the hearts and the pens of Frenchmen who hawk them around the streets, doing a good business among the working men and women.

One of the noon-time sights of the city, is the little groups of serious singers that gather in the back streets and quiet squares and and put their heads together over a new ballad, accompanied by a fiddler or accordion player.

The composer of the piece is sometimes the master of ceremonies.

If so, he is sure to be a long haired composer with a black windsor tie and a dirty shirt.

More likely the chief singer is only a ballad vendor who gets his songs from one of the several music publishing houses that specialize in songs for street minstrels. Not all of the songs are drawing room selections. Most of them are on current topics. Lindbergh had a score of ballads written in his honor. The favorite theme is love with a tragic note in it.

Most of the tunes are melancholy, monotonous and maddening but once in a while a gay air bobs up and before long the accordion players and amateur fiddlers of half the bistros of Paris have taken it up.

For a popular success with a wide sale the profits are not enormous, for the sale price is only 20 sous and out of that the publisher must be paid.

A modern minstrel's royalties in Paris wouldn't furnish pin money for a tin-pan alley hanger-on.

Yet it's doubtful if French ballad makers would have much of an opinion of tin-pan alley if you were to give it to them on a platter.

BREHM THE TAILOR

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Herbert Plummer

Washington. — There's a job awaiting an interior decorator at No. 5 and 7 Rue des Chaillot in Paris.

A nursery must be added to the American embassy. And a fairly large one at that. For the three children of Senator Walter E. Edge, this country's next ambassador to France, will require a lot of room.

Camilla is barely six, Mary Esther is three and Loyall Howard has just celebrated his second birthday. There is a fourth, Walter Evans, Jr., son of Senator Edge by his first marriage, but he is 14 and past the nursery stage.

Youth will be in abundance in Rue des Chaillot. In addition to the children there will be the wife of the ambassador, Mrs. Edge is not yet 30, and will have the distinction of being the youngest hostess of an American embassy.

But despite her youth she will be no stranger to Paris or to the re-responsibilities of a diplomatic household.

Diplomatic Family

Camilla Loyall Ashe Sewall Edge comes from a family which has already made a mark in American diplomacy. Her father, Harold Sewall, was this country's last minister to Hawaii.

He made a name for himself back in 1896 when he resigned his diplomatic post at Honolulu, which he held under President Cleveland, and took the stump against his father's ticket when he was the democratic nominee for vice-president with William Jennings Bryan.

Sound money meant more to Harold Sewall than family pride at that time. The father forgave the rebellious son, and it is said he privately applauded his spunk.

Mrs. Edge has inherited the family love of politics. Before her marriage she delighted in traveling up and down her native state of Maine with her father when he was Republican national committeeman.

She speaks French perfectly. Much of her education was gained abroad. After her father's retirement from the field of diplomacy the family lived a great deal on the continent. She studied in a convent at Brussels while abroad, and upon her return to this country completed her education at St. Timothy's school at Catonsville, Maryland.

Accomplished

Mrs. Edge has the reputation in Washington of being one of the most accomplished hostesses in the senatorial group.

She made her debut first in Boston. Then she was introduced to Washington society. It was during her first season in the capital that she met Senator Edge.

She is tall, rather dark in complexion and very attractive. She dresses rather plainly, but always smartly. Her taste in evening gowns inclines to bright colors instead of the more conventional black and white.

Her children are her life. Every summer she gathers them up and together they go to the Edge summer home in Maine.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Oh where is my nice old Memory Hat?
I must place it upon my head.
I've forgotten the story I wrote last night
Before I went to bed.

Please wait a minute, little reader, while I hunt for that good old hat. Without that pink and yellow head gear I am all at sea. Yes, I I can hardly think for a minute or three without eating a lollypop. Isn't that strange? For any one who has once visited the Lollypop Tree near the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave would rather dream of lollypops than write a story. Oh, my yes, indeedy.

Well, now that I have found that wonderful hat and have placed it upon my head, I remember exactly where we left off in yesterday's story. It was just when the little rabbit had asked Chippy Chipmunk how he had dug his burrow in the ground without leaving any dirt round about. Yes, that's where we left off, or maybe just as the little Chipmunk solemnly began by saying: "I'll explain. But, mind you, little rabbit, it's a secret. No one must know, not even good Professor Crow. No, indeed. He'd write it down in his Wisdom Book at once, and in a short time everybody in the Shady Forest would know it. Yes, everybody would know my secret. Professor Crow is so proud of his Wisdom Book that he loves to read it aloud to any one who will stop to listen. No, he must not know my secret."

"Oh, I've learned lots of things from Professor Crow," cried the little rabbit. "But, goodness me, Chippy Chipmunk, please tell me how you dig your burrow. It will soon be sun down," and the anxious little rabbit pulled out his gold watch, the one that dear Uncle Lucky had given him some umpty-leven stories ago.

"Come close to me, so that nobody will hear," slowly began the little Chipmunk, cautiously looking here and there and everywhere to make sure that there was no one in hearing distance. "First, I tapped on the ground until I found a hollow space near the roots of the Big Chestnut Tree,—a sort of den or cave. Then from the other side of the Old Rail Fence I dug a slanting shaft down to this hollow space, throwing out the dirt in a loose heap. Even when I did reach the hollow space it took me nearly a week to make it over into a comfortable home, with two connecting storerooms."

"Whew!" exclaimed the little rabbit, "I didn't know you had such a big house under ground."

"Well, that isn't the most interesting part," chuckled the wise little Chipmunk, with a wink. "Next I made another tunnel straight upwards to the air, heading away from the first one, until, by and by, it came out on the other side of the tree."

"My, I should think your house would have been full of loose dirt," cried the little bunny.

"Not at all," chuckled the little Chipmunk. "I filled in the first tunnel with it. Nobody knows where my front door is. It's hidden beneath a big root. As for the dirt that came out of the first opening, which I filled up with the dirt from the second tunnel, I carried it all away and hid it. Nobody knows a thing about it but you." And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

Well, now let me poinder for a minute. Oh, yes, no sooner had I closed yesterday's story than dear Uncle Lucky turned off toward home. On arriving at the cross-roads, where the Shady Forks Lane and Lettuce Avenue met, he stopped the Luckymobile for his little bunny nephew to get out. Then, with a goodby, the old gentleman bunny drove off for his red shingled house on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot Street, and the little rabbit? Well, he hurried along, clipperty clip, lipperty lip, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. By and by whom should he meet but Chippy Chipmunk. This cute little fellow was sitting on a log, his red striped fur jacket glistening in the sun. Oh, yes, he looked quite spick and span.

"Hello, little bunny!
Tell me something funny,"

he begged, with a twinkle in his eyes. "Let me think," pondered the little rabbit. "Wish I had my joke book along. I bought it at the Three-in-One Cent Store."

"When?" enquired the curious little Chipmunk.

"Yesterday when I was in Turnip Town."

Just then an idea popped into the bunny boy's head. You know, little readers, how ideas often come, quickerty quick, just like that, swift as the wind that blows off your hat.

"Tell me how you made your nice burrow house under the roots of the Old Chestnut Tree."

"Oh, ho!" chuckled Chippy Chipmunk. "that's my secret!"

"Oh, dear," signed the little bunny. "I've always wondered how you dug way down in the ground without leaving a pile of loose dirt all around."

"Goodness me, you're talking in rhyme!" cried the surprised Chipmunk. "You're a bunny poet."

"Wish I could write verses like mother," mused the little rabbit. "She sings them while she irons the clothes; her eyes are blue and her cheeks like a rose," went on the happy little rabbit. "Oh, yes, Mother can do anything and everything."

"You are not the only person who has asked me how I manage to dig a hole in the ground without leaving a trace of earth around my front door," remarked the little Chipmunk, almost talking to himself, you know, as if he had forgotten that a little rabbit's ears were cocked up high, ready to catch every word.

"Please explain. I won't tell anybody," promised the little bunny, his pink nose twinkling with curiosity.

"Cross your heart and promise me
You'll keen my secret faithfully,"

solemnly recited the little Chipmunk.

"I promise," cried the little bunny, folding his paws across his white fur waistcoat.

"Well," slowly began the little Chipmunk, taking a careful look about him to make sure no one was in hearing distance. "I'll explain, but, mind you, it's a secret. No one knows but you and me and the good old shady chestnut tree," and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"Gracious me! We're in the dumps;
Our beautiful white horse has the mumps,"

whispered the big Elephant in the little rabbit's ears. You remember, nice Uncle Lucky and his bunny nephew were attending the circus matinee in the last story, and were waiting for the show to begin.

"Dear, oh, dear," sighed the old gentleman rabbit. "Half the performance will be ruined without that wonderful horse. What are we going to do?"

"I'll telephone for the Old Brown Horse," cried the little bunny, and in less time than I can take to tell it, that old race horse was in the tanbark ring, trotting round and around as cleverly as if he had been used to that sort of thing all his life.

"That's a bright little nephew of your's," said the circus manager when the performance was over.

"Yes, he's a bright little rabbit," agreed happy Uncle Lucky, and together they hopped around to look at the animals in the big gayly painted wagons, Gracious me! How the lions roared and the hyenas laughed and the bears growled! Several times the little bunny hid behind the old gentleman rabbit's coat tails. When they had seen all there was to be seen, they both hopped into the Luckymobile. Then away they went bumperty bump, over the meadow, till once more the smooth road lay before them. By and by after a while and a sunshiny mile and many a smile, they saw the Farmer's Boy mowing hay.

He was sitting up on a little iron seat above the mowing machine, driving a team of gray horses. Clipperty click went the great knives back and forth in their iron sheath, as they cut the fragrant grass. Stopping behind a clump of trees the two little rabbits watched the barnyard folk, who, led by Cocky Doodles, the little white rooster, were eagerly snapping up crickets and flies, bugs and slugs, that were uncovered by the cutting of the long grass.

By and by along came little Bobbie Redvest and Professor Jim Crow to enjoy the feast. And while the little rabbits looked on Cocky Doodles began to sing:

"Cock-a-doodle-do,
I'm very well, thank you.
We're busy eating little worms
And everything that crawls and squirms.
The Farmer's Bay were helping, too,
For he has all he can do
Just now to mow the tall thick grass
Before a rainstorm comes to pass.
We've satisfied our appetite
Should he forget our corn tonight."

"Well, I never," chuckled Uncle Lucky. "That little rooster is quite a poet." The next minute the Weather-cock on the Big Red Barn whirled around on his gilded toe and pointed to the West. Billy Breeze was trying to bring over a big white cloud to spread across Mr. Merry Sun. But the big white cloud broke up into several little clouds and the old Sun went on smiling, much to the relief of the Farmer's Boy, who didn't want it to rain until he had gathered the dried grass into the big barn. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

THE LUXURY HUSBAND

BY MAYSIE GREIG

SYNOPSIS: Ray Lowther, Yale rowing star, was engaged to marry Barbara Landon a beautiful heiress, when he discovered his own fortune lost Regarding Barbara's millions an insurmountable barrier to their marriage he fled, tried vainly to market his jazz compositions and played in an orchestra to make a living Three years later he unexpectedly met Barbara on ship-board and reluctantly revealed the reason for his disappearance Barbara, wearied of her mad round of pleasures, in which she tried vainly to forget her lover pleads with Ray that his changed fortunes are no obstacle—and begs him to marry her Ray still loves her but refuses Driven to desperation by what she regards as Ray's stubbornness she vows she will still change his mind—and marry him!

Chapter 4

A SLEEPLESS NIGHT

RAY was in bad humor when he got back to his cabin that night He strode in, without a word to his cabin mate, Len Hickson, a fat, merry fellow who combined the dual rôle of banjoist and entertainer

"Sort of chatty tonight, aren't you?" Len observed jocularly "Had a row with your best girl? Who is it?—Not the cute thing in red who made such a flying dash towards you this evening? She's some Ritz baby. Hear she has money, too Boy, you're lucky."

Len Hickson's bantering was stopped abruptly by Ray's menacing words.

And picking up his banjo, he commenced singing,

"Yes, sir, that's my baby No, sir, don't mean maybe Yes, sir, that's my baby now!"

"Oh, for heaven's sake don't you get enough yelling to do all day?" growled Ray

But Len merely grinned and went on singing

"Oh, I loved her in the morning, I loved her at night I loved her in the evening when the stars were shining bright. I loved her in the springtime and I loved her in the fall. But tonight on the top deck I loved her best of all!"

But this, to Ray, was the last straw. It was the very tune to which he and Barbara had specially liked to foxtrot in the old days

He stood over the little fellow menacingly

"If you don't shut up I'll brain you," he said in a voice that carried conviction

With that he turned off the lights and threw himself down onto his bunk

But, of course, he did not sleep He had no hope of sleeping with that scene with Barbara still vivid in his mind

He wished that he had never taken this particular job wished Barbara had never been aboard, wished . . But what was the use of wishing?

Of course it was out of the question, his marrying her! Barbara Landon and a penniless saxophonist—a situation good enough for the comic strip Besides, it was not as though he were necessary to her.

In no time she would be married to some rich fellow who would look after her, perhaps the Englishman He was a dumb-bell, that Englishman, not good enough for Barbara

Then he tried, seriously, to think who was good enough for Barbara without succeeding She was so sweet or had been in the old days

Now he could not see that she was changed, although she had told him that she was and even if she were, what of it? Had he not changed too? He had been a queer fellow when Barbara had first met him shy in a crowd, preferring to spend long hours at the piano or with a saxophone than going to places with the rest of the gang But Barbara, during the short time they had been together, had changed all that, and his life since had completed what she had begun.

When he had recovered from the first shock of his father's suicide he had gone directly to the Canadian woods, where he had worked for a season as a lumberjack He had liked the rough open air life, but gradually, as his spirits revived, he came to yearn for the life to which he had been accustomed

This longing was intensified by the fact that out there in the wilds there was no place in his life for his music At college, the boys had considered him a genius because of the spontaneous manner with which he could improvise jazz. Jazz was in Ray's blood, he adored it, almost putting it on a pedestal and worshipping it and from boyhood he had dreamt secretly and continuously of the day when he could put his own compositions before an appreciative public

A year later he went to Chicago, where, in order to provide himself with the essentials of life, he washed dishes at night in a cafeteria and devoted his spare moments in the day time to composing.

One afternoon, when playing his saxophone, Bill Foster, a pianist who roomed opposite in the lodging house, had put his head around the door and asked Ray if he would care to join a jazz band which he, Bill, was organizing Ray had enthusiastically accepted

Since his first engagement he had wandered to many cities Finally, a few weeks previously, he signed up for this tour He accepted his job of professional saxophone player philosophically, even with a touch of humor, and never for a moment did he allow himself to regard it in a derogatory light

Of course, during the past years of vagabondage there had been girls in his life But not one had usurped the place that had been Barbara's. At first his desire for her had been agony But the intense longing had lessened until he had found himself loving her in a remote way, as one loves an unattainable dream rather than an actual living woman

That she should come into his life again had seemed inconceivable And now not only had he met her again but she had actually asked him, even begged him, to marry her!

How could such a marriage achieve any possible happiness? How could he ever marry her and maintain his pride his self respect? No It was out of the question He was glad he had given her definitely to understand that it was—glad

But, lying there sleeplessly in the uncomfortable, narrow bunk, he found himself going over the entire conversation, and certain words she had used came back with a distinct sense of uneasiness

"If you won't have me then I shall take care that no other man shall want me"

Of course she could not have intended that seriously, still—there had been a queerly determined glint in her eyes and he remembered uncomfortably that in the old days Barbara had not been given to vain boasting Great heavens, if for a moment he seriously thought—thought that she actually needed him . .

But at that, the perspiration starting from his forehead, he sat up straight in his bunk and, with a vague idea that the pillow was unnecessarily hard he thumped it fiercely while he cursed himself for a conceited fool!

WHAT THEY DECIDED

By Mary Graham Bonner

The leader cricket now got up and spoke again He had received all the votes from the other crickets

"Every single cricket," he said "has used a piece of grass in voting So we have all decided the same way

"We have just formed the great Cricket Club, and we have had to make rules The first of our rules which we have just been voting on is that we should not have a lot of useless words to use when we talk

We wondered whether it would be a good idea to have a lot of different things to say or if we should say the same thing over and over again

"We have decided that having nice cheery voices we might just as well say the same thing over and over again It saves bother It keeps us from having to study too much

"It gives us time to sing and chatter without learning a lot of words

"Those who use the piece of grass in voting decided this way No one used a piece of weed in voting which would have meant votes for more words to use

"From now on fellow crickets we will always make the same speeches the same sounds the same little songs We are small It is not to be expected of us that we should have a great many words

Large creatures like people can use a lot of words but little creatures such as we are need not"

All the crickets waved their feelers which was their way of clapping

You've been present the little black clock explained "at the opening meeting when the crickets decided they would not change their song or chatter

So when you hear them say the same thing over and over again you'll know that it was according to the vote of every cricket

But we've got big plans ahead! We must make haste

Women Are Free!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Legally, politically and socially woman has been emancipated from those chains which bound her. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has exploded the ridiculous theory that forced the stigma of inferiority upon a sex.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful, corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation-No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra 'toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 250°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, 'It's Toasted' is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

He had been a queer fellow when Barbara had first met him: shy in a crowd, preferring to spend long hours at the piano or with a saxophone than going to places with the rest of the gang. But Barbara, during the short time they had been together, had changed all that, and his life since had completed what she had begun.

When he had recovered from the first shock of his father's suicide he had gone directly to the Canadian woods, where he had worked for a season as a lumberjack. He had liked the rough open-air life, but gradually, as his spirits revived, he came to yearn for the life to which he had been accustomed.

This longing was intensified by the fact that out there in the wilds there was no place in his life for his music. At college, the boys had considered him a genius because of the spontaneous manner with which he could improvise jazz. Jazz was in Ray's blood, he adored it, almost putting it on a pedestal and worshipping it, and from boyhood he had dreamt secretly and continuously of the day when he could put his own compositions before an appreciative public.

A year later he went to Chicago, where, in order to provide himself with the essentials of life, he washed dishes at night in a cafeteria and devoted his spare moments in the day time to composing.

One afternoon, when playing his saxophone, Bill Foster, a pianist who roomed opposite in the lodging house, had put his head around the door and asked Ray if he would care to join a jazz band which he, Bill, was organizing. Ray had enthusiastically accepted.

Since his first engagement he had wandered to many cities. Finally, a few weeks previously, he signed up for this tour. He accepted his job of professional saxophone player philosophically, even with a touch of humor, and never for a moment did he allow himself to regard it in a derogatory light.

Of course, during the past years of vagabondage, there had been girls in his life. But not one had usurped the place that had been Barbara's. At first his desire for her had been agony. But the intense longing had lessened until he had found himself loving her in a remote way, as one loves an unattainable dream rather than an actual living woman.

That she should come into his life again had seemed inconceivable. And now not only had he met her again, but she had actually asked him, even begged him, to marry her!

How could such a marriage achieve any possible happiness? How could he ever marry her and maintain his pride, his self-respect? No. It was out of the question. He was glad he had given her definitely to understand that it was—glad.

But, lying there sleeplessly in the uncomfortable, narrow bunk, he found himself going over the entire conversation, and certain words she had used came back with a distinct sense of uneasiness.

"If you won't have me then I shall take care that no other man shall want me."

Of course she could not have intended that seriously, still—there had been a queerly determined glint in her eyes and he remembered uncomfortably that in the old days Barbara had not been given to vain boasting. Great heavens, if for a moment he seriously thought—thought that she actually needed him. . . .

But at that, the perspiration starting from his forehead, he sat up straight in his bunk and, with a vague idea that the pillow was unnecessarily hard, he thumped it fiercely while he cursed himself for a conceited fool!

SUNDOWN STORIES

WHAT THEY DECIDED

By Mary Graham Bonner

The leader cricket now got up and spoke again. He had received all the votes from the other crickets.

"Every single cricket," he said, "has used a piece of grass in voting. So we have all decided the same way.

"We have just formed the great Cricket Club, and we have had to make rules. The first of our rules which we have just been voting on is that we should not have a lot of useless words to use when we talk.

"We wondered whether it would be a good idea to have a lot of different things to say, or if we should say the same thing over and over again.

"We have decided that, having nice, cheery voices, we might just as well say the same thing over and over again. It saves botther. It keeps us from having to study too much.

"It gives us time to sing and chatter without learning a lot of words.

"Those who use the piece of grass in voting decided this way. No one used a piece of weed in voting, which would have meant votes for more words to use.

"From now on, fellow crickets, we will always make the same speeches, the same sounds, the same little songs. We are small. It is not to be expected of us that we should have a great many words.

"Large creatures like people can use a lot of words, but little creatures, such as we are, need not."

All the crickets waved their feelers, which was their way of clapping.

"You've been present," the little black clock explained, "at the opening meeting when the crickets decided they would not change their song or chatter.

"So when you hear them say the same thing over and over again, you'll know that it was according to the vote of every cricket.

"But we've got big plans ahead! We must make haste."

Popularity... begins with a Clear Skin

IT'S the person with a clear, smooth, lovely complexion that usually wins.

To be sure, not much is said openly about skin eruptions, but secretly they influence many important affairs. Personal likes and dislikes are quickly formed.

Everybody wants to be attractive. It is a just and natural ambition. A clear skin makes everyone more attractive.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils, eczema and other skin eruptions as being an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

The sure way to remedy this condition is to restore the red-blood-cells to normal.

S.S.S.

This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of those unsightly blemishes and painful skin annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

S.S.S. helps Nature restore the blood to its normal state. Healthy blood makes the body strong and resistant to disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or healthy, beautiful women.

If you are troubled with so-called skin disorders or if the count of your red-blood-cells is low, take a few bottles of S.S.S. Seek energy, vitality and a clear skin through the remedy, which is made from fresh vegetable drugs, and has stood the test of over 100 years.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Women Are Free!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Legally, politically and socially woman has been emancipated from those chains which bound her. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE has exploded the ridiculous theory that forced the stigma of inferiority upon a sex.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful, corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By Herbert Plummer

Washington. — There's a job awaiting an interior decorator at No. 5 and 7 Rue des Chaillot in Paris

A nursery must be added to the American embassy And a fairly large one at that For the three children of Senator Walter E Edge, this country's next ambassador to France, will require a lot of room

Camilla is barely six. Mary Esther is three and Loyall Howard has just celebrated his second birthday There is a fourth, Walter Evans, Jr., son of Senator Edge by his first marriage, but he is 14 and past the nursery stage.

Youth will be in abundance in Rue des Chaillot. In addition to the children there will be the wife of the ambassador. Mrs. Edge is not yet 30, and will have the distinction of being the youngest hostess of an American embassy

But despite her youth she will be no stranger to Paris or to the responsibilities of a diplomatic household

Diplomatic Family

Camilla Loyall Ashe Sewall Edge comes from a family which has already made a mark in American diplomacy Her father, Harold Sewall was this country's last minister to Hawaii.

He made a name for himself back in 1896 when he resumed his diplomatic post at Honolulu, which he held under President Cleveland and took the stump against his father's ticket when he was the democratic nominee for vice-president with William Jennings Bryan.

Sound money meant more to Harold Sewall than family pride at that time. The father forgave the rebellious son, and it is said he privately applauded his spunk.

Mrs Edge has inherited the family love of politics. Before her marriage she delighted in traveling up and down her native state of Maine with her father when he was Republican national committeeman.

She speaks French perfectly. Much of her education was gained abroad. After her father's retirement from the field of diplomacy the family lived a great deal on the continent. She studied in a convent at Brussels while abroad, and upon her return to this country completed her education at St. Timothy's school at Catonsville, Maryland.

Accomplished

Mrs. Edge has the reputation in Washington of being one of the most accomplished hostesses in the senatorial group.

She made her debut first in Boston. Then she was introduced to Washington society. It was during her first season in the capital that she met Senator Edge.

She is tall, rather dark in complexion and very attractive. She dresses rather plainly, but always smartly. Her taste in evening gowns inclines to bright colors instead of the more conventional black and white.

Her children are her life. Every summer she gathers them up and together they go to the Edge summer home in Maine.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

Oh where is my nice old Memory Hat?
I must place it upon my head.
I've forgotten the story I wrote last night
Before I went to bed.

Please wait a minute, little reader, while I hunt for that good old hat Without that pink and yellow head gear I am all at sea. Yes, I I can hardly think for a minute or three without eating a lollypop. Isn't that strange? For any one who has once visited the Lollypop Tree near the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave would rather dream of lollypops than write a story. Oh, my yes, indeedy.

Well, now that I have found that wonderful hat and have placed it upon my head, I remember exactly where we left off in yesterday's story. It was just when the little rabbit had asked Chippy Chipmunk how he had dug his burrow in the ground without leaving any dirt round about. Yes, that's where we left off, or maybe just as the little Chipmunk solemnly began by saying: "I'll explain. But, mind you, little rabbit, it's a secret. No one must know, not even good Professor Crow. No, indeed. He'd write it down in his Wisdom Book at once, and in a short time everybody in the Shady Forest would know it. Yes, everybody would know my secret. Professor Crow is so proud of his Wisdom Book that he loves to read it aloud to any one who will stop to listen No, he must not know my secret."

"Oh, I've learned lots of things from Professor Crow," cried the little rabbit. "But, goodness me, Chippy Chipmunk, please tell me how you dig your burrow. It will soon be sun down," and the anxious little rabbit pulled out his gold watch, the one that dear Uncle Lucky had given him some umpteen stories ago.

"Come close to me, so that nobody will hear," slowly began the little Chipmunk, cautiously looking here and there and everywhere to make sure that there was no one in hearing distance. "First, I tapped on the ground until I found a hollow space near the roots of the Big Chestnut Tree,—a sort of den or cave. Then from the other side of the Old Rail Fence I dug a slanting shaft down to this hollow space, throwing out the dirt in a loose heap. Even when I did reach the hollow space it took me nearly a week to make it over into a comfortable home, with two connecting storerooms."

"Whew!" exclaimed the little rabbit, "I didn't know you had such a big house under ground."

"Well, that isn't the most interesting part," chuckled the wise little Chipmunk, with a wink. "Next I made another tunnel straight upwards to the air, heading away from the first one, until, by and by, it came out on the other side of the tree."

"My, I should think your house would have been full of loose dirt," cried the little bunny.

"Not at all," chuckled the little Chipmunk. "I filled in the first tunnel with it. Nobody knows where my front door is. It's hidden beneath a big root. As for the dirt that came out of the first opening, which I filled up with the dirt from the second tunnel, I carried it all away and hid it. Nobody knows a thing about it but you" And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that

Well, now let me ponder for a minute. Oh, yes, no sooner had I closed yesterday's story than dear Uncle Lucky turned off toward home. On arriving at the cross-roads, where the Shady Forks Lane and Lettuce Avenue met, he stopped the Luckymobile for his little bunny nephew to get out Then, with a goodby, the old gentleman bunny drove off for his red shingled house on the corner of Lettuce Avenue and Carrot Street, and the little rabbit? Well, he hurried along, clipperty clip, hipperty hip, his knapsack bouncing up and down on his back and his red striped candy cane swinging from his left paw. By and by whom should he meet but Chippy Chipmunk. This cute little fellow was sitting on a log, his red striped fur jacket glistening in the sun Oh, yes, he looked quite spick and span.

"Hello, little bunny!
Tell me something funny"

he begged, with a twinkle in his eyes. "Let me think," pondered the little rabbit "Wish I had my joke book along. I bought it at the Three-in-One Cent Store"

"When?" enquired the curious little Chipmunk

"Yesterday when I was in Turnip Town."

Just then an idea popped into the bunny boy's head You know little readers, how ideas often come, quickerty quick, just like that, swift as the wind that blows off your hat.

"Tell me how you made your nice burrow house under the roots of the Old Chestnut Tree"

"Oh, ho!" chuckled Chippy Chipmunk. "that's my secret!"

"Oh, dear," signed the little bunny. "I've always wondered how you dug way down in the ground without leaving a pile of loose dirt all around"

"Goodness me, you're talking in rhyme!" cried the surprised Chipmunk. "You're a bunny poet"

"Wish I could write verses like mother," mused the little rabbit. "She sings them while she irons the clothes, her eyes are blue and her cheeks like a rose," went on the happy little rabbit "Oh, yes, Mother can do anything and everything."

"You are not the only person who has asked me how I manage to dig a hole in the ground without leaving a trace of earth around my front door," remarked the little Chipmunk, almost talking to himself, you know, as if he had forgotten that a little rabbit's ears were cocked up high, ready to catch every word.

"Please explain. I won't tell anybody," promised the little bunny, his pink nose twinkling with curiosity.

"Cross your heart and promise me
You'll keen my secret faithfully,"

solemnly recited the little Chipmunk.

"I promise," cried the little bunny, folding his paws across his white fur waistcoat.

"Well," slowly began the little Chipmunk, taking a careful look about him to make sure no one was in hearing distance. "I'll explain, but, mind you, it's a secret. No one knows but you and me and the good old shady chestnut tree," and in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

"Gracious me! We're in the dumps;
Our beautiful white horse has the mumps,"

whispered the big Elephant in the little rabbit's ears. You remember, nice Uncle Lucky and his bunny nephew were attending the circus matinee in the last story, and were waiting for the show to begin.

"Dear, oh, dear," sighed the old gentleman rabbit. "Half the performance will be ruined without that wonderful horse. What are we going to do?"

"I'll telephone for the Old Brown Horse," cried the little bunny, and in less time than I can take to tell it, that old race horse was in the tanbark ring, trotting round and around as cleverly as if he had been used to that sort of thing all his life.

"That's a bright little nephew of your's," said the circus manager when the performance was over.

"Yes, he's a bright little rabbit," agreed happy Uncle Lucky, and together they hopped around to look at the animals in the big gayly painted wagons, Gracious me! How the lions roared and the hyenas laughed and the bears growled! Several times the little bunny hid behind the old gentleman rabbit's coat tails. When they had seen all there was to be seen, they both hopped into the Luckymobile. Then away they went bumperty bump, over the meadow, till once more the smooth road lay before them By and by after a while and a sunshiny mile and many a smile, they saw the Farmer's Boy mowing hay.

They stopped behind a clump of trees

He was sitting up on a little iron seat above the mowing machine, driving a team of gray horses. Clipperty click went the great knives back and forth in their iron sheath, as they cut the fragrant grass Stopping behind a clump of trees the two little rabbits watched the barnyard folk, who, led by Cocky Doodles, the little white rooster, were eagerly snapping up crickets and flies, bugs and slugs, that were uncovered by the cutting of the long grass.

By and by along came little Bobbie Redvest and Professor Jim Crow to enjoy the feast. And while the little rabbits looked on Cocky Doodles began to sing:

"Cock-a-doodle-do,
I'm very well, thank you.
We're busy eating little worms
And everything that crawls and squirms.
The Farmer's Boy were helping, too,
For he has all he can do
Just now to mow the tall thick grass
Before a rainstorm comes to pass.
We've satisfied our appetite
Should he forget our corn tonight."

"Well, I never," chuckled Uncle Lucky "That little rooster is quite a poet." The next minute the Weather-cock on the Big Red Barn whirled around on his gilded toe and pointed to the West. Billy Breeze was trying to bring over a big white cloud to spread across Mr. Merry Sun. But the big white cloud broke up into several little clouds and the old Sun went on smiling, much to the relief of the Farmer's Boy, who didn't want it to rain until he had gathered the dried grass into the big barn. And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

THIS IS PARIS

PLAYS FROM ABROAD

By Hazel Reavis

Paris—There was a time when New York drew on Paris for many of its Broadway divertisements but but the shoe now covers the other foot as American productions grow is vogue in show houses here.

There are a handful of American and English shows running now and others will be added when the theatrical season reopens Some of them are bearded with age; others are new.

"Rose Marie" is closing after a three-year run in which it gave more than a thousand and one performances to enthusiastic audiences

"Hit the Deck" under the nickname of "Hallelujah" will take the place of the musical comedy at the Mogador theater. Its name-song is already a favorite all over France and a part of the phonograph repertoire of jazz-loving French homes. Like "Romona" the "Hallelujah" chorus goes on and on and to the French way of thinking, only becomes more popular with age.

French theater goers, unlike American, like old tunes in their new shows. They are great songsters, and a good tune has a long life in France where everybody sings and nearly everybody can "render a ditty."

Another foreign favorite is "The Trial of Mary Dugan" which recently resumed a long run interrupted by summer closing.

On In Summer

In spite of heat and vacation exodus, "The Ghost Train," in a French translation, went right on playing all summer long. So did the English version of the play "Maya" banned in America. The English players here headed by Edward Sterling are having an outstanding success in "Journey's End" which had it Paris premiere in May.

"Front Page" the American newspaper thriller, is promised Paris shortly in a French translation. Other plays in preparation or prospect at Boulevard theaters are "The Shanghai Gesture," "Street Scene," and "Burlesque."

At the Sarah Bernhardt Theater, "Desert Song" is scheduled as the autumn opener and across the Place du Chatelet, "New Moon," rechristened "The Pirate," will succeed "Around the World in Eighty Days."

Street Singers

France certainly earns its reputation for song, even if it borrows many of them from abroad.

It is not the "songs of the peepul" that are borrowed. They still come from the hearts and the pens of Frenchmen who hawk them around the streets, doing a good business among the working men and women.

One of the noon-time sights of the city, is the little groups of serious singers that gather in the back streets and quiet squares and and put their heads together over a new ballad, accompanied by a fiddler or accordion player.

The composer of the piece is sometimes the master of ceremonies.

If so, he is sure to be a long haired composer with a black windsor tie and a dirty shirt.

More likely the chief singer is only a ballad vendor who gets his songs from one of the several music publishing houses that specialize in songs for street minstrels. Not all of the songs are drawing room selections. Most of them are on current topics. Lindbergh had a score of ballads written in his honor The favorite theme is love with a tragic note in it.

Most of the tunes are melancholy, monotonous and maddening but once in a while a gay air bobs up and before long the accordion players and amateur fiddlers of half the bistros of Paris have taken it up.

For a popular success with a wide sale the profits are not enormous, for the sale price is only 20 sous and out of that the publisher must be paid.

A modern minstrel's royalties in Paris wouldn't furnish pin money for a tin-pan alley hanger-on.

Yet it's doubtful if French ballad makers would have much of an opinion of tin-pan alley if you were to give it to them on a platter.

STATE LIFTS 10 ROAD DETOURS, STARTS FOUR

Harrisburg—Inauguration of four new detours on state highways and the lifting of ten others during the next week was announced today by the state highway department.

The new detours are situated in Schuylkill county between Pottsville and Llewellyn 2.5 miles over macadam; Allegheny county between Etna and Hampton School six miles improved; Franklin county between Chambersburg and Waynesboro 2.5 miles over earth and Montgomery county between Jarrettown and Mapleglen, one mile over macadam.

A total of 388 miles of new road has been constructed by contract thus far this year, the department said. There were 199 contracted projects under way last week with 31 miles built during that period.

FINED IN HAGERSTOWN

Hagerstown—Charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Charles S. Pickett, of Frederick, was fined $100 and costs by Justice Bitner, of Hagerstown, Monday morning. He paid the fine and was released. At the same time, George Strasberger, West Sixth street, Frederick, and Harry Bopst, West Seventh street, this city, paid fines of $5 and costs each for being drunk. They returned to Frederick the same morning.

The three men, who were riding together, were arrested when the automobile driven by Pickett crashed into the machine of Howard W. Couchman, of near Hagerstown, when they were proceeding on Jefferson street of that city. At the same time the three Frederick men were convicted, seventeen other drunks and two intoxicated drivers were fined at the Washington county seat.

Foot Ball: Some time ago the Pennsylvania College boys challenged the Dickinson College foot ball team to play a match game, which was accepted, but the date left undetermined. On Saturday morning a telegram from Carlisle announced that the Dickinson boys were en route, much to the surprise of the challengers, who had deferred both organization and practice. The Pennsylvania College students were promptly called together, an association formed and an eleven chosen. The officers are: President, M. F. Troxell; V. President, A. H. F. Fisher; Rec. Sec., M. H. Buehler; Cor. Sec., W. E. Stahler; Treas., George Gotwald.

At 1:30 p. m., the players made their appearance, but it was two o'clock before they started to play. W. Donovan, of Dickinson, was made unmpire, with H. G. Schoor, of Dickinson and W. P. Schwartz of Pennsylvania college, as referees. The following young men constituted the Gettysburg eleven:

E. L. Loudon, '81, captain; A. H. F. Fisher, '80; T. C. Linn, '81; R. F. Forrest, '81; R. M. Scott, '81; W. F. Musser, '81; F. M. Gaver, '82; M. H. Valentine, '82; W. D. Loudon, '82; R. Linton, '83; D. M. McIlhenny, '83.

The Dickinson eleven were accompanied by a number of their fellow students, and quite a crowd of person witnessed the game, most of the professors of the college dignifying the occasion by their presence, besides ladies and gentlemen from town.

The game began with the ball in the hands of the home eleven, it being agreed that the party winning the first eleven innings should be the victors. Seventeen innings were played, the game terminating about 5 o'clock. The umpiring from beginning to end gave evidence of honest purpose and the final decision were generally acquiesced in after a good deal of wrangling. The home eleven proved victorious, winning 11 innings to 6 for the Dickinson boys. Four fouls were allowed to each side, in the other innings the ball was carried squarely home.

There was some good playing on both sides, but the most brilliant play was made by Mr. Linn, of the home team in the 14th inning. As the ball was kicked from the starting base, he received it, ran in and sent it home, without being touched by any other played, the inning terminating in about half a minute.

General good feeling seemed to prevail at the close of the game the Dickinson boys who deported themselves manfully receiving three hearty cheers. They promptly challenged the home eleven to a return game to be played in Carlisle, which will doubtless be accepted.

At the Fair the boys enjoyed the goat race, the one driven by Billy Hersh, the other by Fred McCammon. It was a go-as-you-please. Billy's goat won, but Fred claimed a "foul," alleging that the boys pushed Billy's cart. But the judges ruled the point not well taken and awarded the palm to Billy.

PERMANENCE

We grow in spriit or there is no growth.
For age the strongest arm will render weak.
Two men there and and time shall conquer both.
The champion and the next his place to seek.
For every man is followed up the way
By him who shall succeed him in his day.

The place we spend our skill and strength to gain,
The glittering tokens of our conquests won,
Younger and stronger hands shall soon attain.
All, all are baubles when our race is run.
But that sweet learning with its magic powers,
Once it is ours, remains forever ours.

The strong man to the stronger gives his post.
The rich are soon by richer thrust aside.
Always are rising champions to boast,
At every goal is permanence denied,
But he who grows in wisdom is secure.
The treasure which he gathers shall endure.
The kindly man will never lose his place,
No kindlier one will rush to seize his crown;
The noble spirit has no foes to face.
The gentle life is sure of its renown.
Who grows in wisdom, fortitude and truth,
Holds all he gains against oncoming youth!

Slim Pickens came near having a fight without knowing it last Monday. He was standing on the street at Bounding Billows as innocent at a lamb, and all at once a puff of wind blew a speck of dirt in his eye, and just at that moment a handsome lady was passing. Naturally, on account of the speck of dirt he began blinking his eye and nodding his head, whereupon the lady pointed to her husband sitting in the car.

Charged with Laziness—
Guilty Simply of Acidity!

More than one man today is misjudged and unjustly penalized because of a not understood physical condition rather than any lack of willingness or ability.

So many of us are only half ourselves, only fifty per cent efficient, because we are victims of an insidious condition of acidity! That persistent tired feeling— that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire —that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system.

Acidity is brought on by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and irregular hours. It impairs digestion, and causes fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines and drags us down physically and mentally.

Begins Where Milk of Magnesia Leaves Off

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany. As an acid corrective it begins where milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda leave off.

This new, improved magnesia comes in the form of small white tablets called Magnesia Oxoids which do not have to be swallowed whole.

Magnesia Oxoids, upon contact with the acid in the stomach, generate nascent, or active, oxygen., as any doctor will tell you, when generated within the digestive tract does just the things required for acidity. It stimulates the secretion of the alkaline mucus. It checks the putrefaction and fermentation in the gastro-intestinal canal. It exercises a stimulating effect upon the activities of the intestinal walls and airs the movement of the bowels.

All three effects are necessary to the true relief of acidity and Magnesia oxoids supply them in a perfectly natural manner.

Five-Day Acid Test

See for yourself how much acid has to do with your run-down condition and that persistent feeling of tiredness. Make this 5-day acid test. Get a package of Magnesia Oxoids from People's Drug Store or any other druggist on our money-back guarantee. Take two after each meal for five days. Note the pick-up in your pep and vigor. Mark the new peace of your stomach and nerves. If five days' test doesn't show you a decided improvement in your health, return the balance of the Oxoids to your druggist and he will refund your money.

Mirrors of Yesterday

Editor's Note: What was the world doing in the pleasant days when today's adults were youths? Forty years ago "Red" Coolidge was a student at Amherst college. A chubby-faced boy was making good in Oregon. That was Herbert Hoover. Here is the American scene in those interesting times recreated from the transient recordings of daily happenings in a series of weekly stories.

By Alexander George

In the primly gay nineties, when Victorianism had reached a robust old age and sentimental ballads were in high favor, the big cities of America offered a rich theatrical menu, ranging from the dime museum to Henry Irving, Ellen Terry and Joseph Jefferson.

Sothern was gracefully romantic in "The Prisoner of Zenda." David Belasco was presenting "The Heart of Maryland," "In Old Kentucky," with its chasm-leaping heroines and popular pickaninnies, had been revived, and the young Chauncey Olcott was crooning lyrics of old Erin. Francis Wilson and Modjeska, Nat Goodwin and Walker Whiteside were other stars in a great firmament.

Professor Kerslake's educated pigs were at Huber's museum in Fourteenth street, New York. An added attraction there was a squad of female barbers, "eight handsome ladies who shaved male patrons free of charge." At Kohn and Middleton's Clark street museum, Chicago, they hanged a man at every performance, "yet he lived to tell the tale."

The latter was the acme of dime shows. Hard Headed Hull was one of its headliners. Some persons selected by the audience took a sledge hammer and broke a stone on Hull's head.

Advocates of a rigid observance of Sunday were warring on bicycle riders. "Strict Connecticut Sabbatarians have for several weeks been scattering tacks early Sunday mornings over the new bicycle path from Meriden to North Haven," the New York Sun reported.

"The design is to discourage bicyclists from breaking the Sabbath by riding. In many cases washers have been fitted to the tacks in order to make them stand upright and render them more certain to puncture a pneumatic tire."

A new York minister was the target for criticism because he smoked a pipe, but the presbytery decided the pipe had not hindered his clerical duties. "We have seen a distinguished Episcopal minister of this city smoking a brierwood pipe," said the Sun. "In southern states and in some western states there are ministers who chew tobacco, and we have heard of one of them out in old Kentucky who stuck to his quid while preaching."

The stores were selling "gents' medicated red underwear, all wool, at 50 cents." It was the day of astrachan capes, plush Newmarkets, folding beds with bevel mirrors, dapple grey family horses and sidebar buggies, huge cut glass mustard jars and luxury hammocks.

"No gentleman," said Dunlap, the hatter, "would appear in a white plug hat after September 15."

"Ballroom gloves are as necessary to the gentleman as his socks," said Joe L. Day, Chicago style authority. "If I were giving a party I would as soon have a man come to it in his bare feet as in his bare hands."

Studies Win Tour

Kansas City (AP).—It's paying Richard L. Sutton, Jr., to follow in the footsteps of an illustrious father.

He will hunt wild game for the next nine months in Tanganyika East Africa, and in Cambodia French Indo-China—just as his father, Dr. Richard L. Sutton nationally known Kansas City physician, has done in the past.

Young Sutton's high scholastic record in his father's profession at the University of Michigan medical school brought him this reward.

The youthful doctor, now 21, entered Yale at 15 and received his master's degree in anatomy a year ago. He was one of eight medical students to win honors at Michigan this year.

Relief From Curse Of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c, today at The People's Drug Store.—adv.

Foot Ball: Some time ago the Pennsylvania College boys challenged the Dickinson College foot ball team to play a match game, which was accepted, but the date left undetermined. On Saturday morning a telegram from Carlisle announced that the Dickinson boys were en route, much to the surprise of the challengers, who had deferred both organization and practice. The Pennsylvania College students were promptly called together, an association formed and an eleven chosen. The officers are: President, M. F. Troxell; V. President, A. H. F. Fisher; Rec. Sec., M. H. Buehler; Cor. Sec., W. E. Stahler; Treas., George Gotwald.

At 1:30 p. m., the players made their appearance, but it was two o'clock before they started to play. W. Donovan, of Dickinson, was made unmpire, with H. G. Schoor, of Dickinson and W. P. Schwartz of Pennsylvania college, as referees. The following young men constituted the Gettysburg eleven:

E. L. Loudon, '81, captain; A. H. F. Fisher, '80; T. C. Linn, '81; R. F. Forrest, '81; R. M. Scott, '81; W. F. Musser, '81; F. M. Gaver, '82; M. H. Valentine, '82; W. D. Loudon, '82; R. Linton, '83; D. M. McIlhenny, '83.

The Dickinson eleven were accompanied by a number of their fellow students, and quite a crowd of person witnessed the game, most of the professors of the college dignifying the occasion by their presence, besides ladies and gentlemen from town.

The game began with the ball in the hands of the home eleven, it being agreed that the party winning the first eleven innings should be the victors. Seventeen innings were played, the game terminating about 5 o'clock. The umpiring from beginning to end gave evidence of honest purpose and the final decision were generally acquiesced in after a good deal of wrangling. The home eleven proved victorious, winning 11 innings to 6 for the Dickinson boys. Four fouls were allowed to each side, in the other innings the ball was carried squarely home.

There was some good playing on both sides, but the most brilliant play was made by Mr. Linn, of the home team in the 14th inning. As the ball was kicked from the starting base, he received it, ran in and sent it home, without being touched by any other played, the inning terminating in about half a minute.

General good feeling seemed to prevail at the close of the game the Dickinson boys who deported themselves manfully receiving three hearty cheers. They promptly challenged the home eleven to a return game to be played in Carlisle, which will doubtless be accepted.

The proceeds of the Fair and Festival at Mummasburg, for the relief of Sergt. Hiram Lady, amounted to the snug sum of $211.32 $177.65 in cash and the balance in country produce for the use of the family, for their generous donation the family have the heart-felt thanks of the friends of the gallant but unfortunate soldier.

The Court at Carlisle has had posters in the court rooms a very conspicuous notice prohibiting the eating of peanuts and chestnuts. How would it do to apply the same rule in our court room?

Improvement: Winter & Son, of this place, are putting up a large warehouse in the rear of the dwelling to accommodate their increasing business. Liberal advertising did it.

* * *

At the Fair the boys enjoyed the goat race, the one driven by Billy Hersh, the other by Fred McCammon. It was a go-as-you-please. Billy's goat won, but Fred claimed a "foul," alleging that the boys pushed Billy's cart. But the judges ruled the point not well taken and awarded the palm to Billy.

PERMANENCE

We grow in spriit or there is no growth.
For age the strongest arm will render weak.
Two men there and and time shall conquer both.
The champion and the next his place to seek.
For every man is followed up the way
By him who shall succeed him in his day.

The place we spend our skill and strength to gain.
The glittering tokens of our conquests won.
Younger and stronger hands shall soon attain.
All, all are baubles when our race is run.
But that sweet learning with its magic powers,
Once it is ours, remains forever ours.

The strong man to the stronger gives his post.
The rich are soon by richer thrust aside.
Always are rising champions to boast.
At every goal is permanence denied.
But he who grows in wisdom is secure.
The treasure which he gathers shall endure.
The kindly man will never lose his place.
No kindlier one will rush to seize his crown;
The noble spirit has no foes to face.
The gentle life is sure of its renown.
Who grows in wisdom, fortitude and truth,
Holds all he gains against oncoming youth!

Dog Hill Paragraphs

By GEORGE BINGHAM

Slim Pickens came near having a fight without knowing it last Monday. He was standing on the street at Bounding Billows as innocent at a lamb, and all at once a puff of wind blew a speck of dirt in his eye, and just at that moment a handsome lady was passing. Naturally, on account of the speck of dirt he began blinking his eye and nodding his head, whereupon the lady pointed to her husband sitting in the car.

According to Columbus Allsop's clock, which is always right, the sun has not been rising or setting on time this week.

Guilty Simpl

More than one man today is misjudged and unjustly penalized because of a not understood physical condition rather than any lack of willingness or ability.

So many of us are only half ourselves, only fifty per cent efficient because we are victims of an insidious condition of acidity! That persistent tired feeling— that clouded mind—that lack of dash and fire—that missing punch that decides so many situations in business—are all usually due to an acid system.

Acidity is brought on by our unnatural eating, excessive smoking and irregular hours. It impairs digestion, and causes fermentation and putrefaction in the intestines and drags us down physically and mentally.

Begins Where Milk of Magnesia Leaves Off

A remarkable new corrective of acidity has been developed by a famous 100-year-old pharmaceutical house in Germany. As an acid corrective it begins where milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda leave off.

This new, improved magnesia comes in the form of small white tablets called Magnesia Oxoic which do not have to be swallowed whole.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

TOO BUSY

I HAVE noticed that people who are continually saying they are "too busy" wear a very worried expression on their faces. Stamped upon each line of their faces seem to glow the words: "I am doing too much."

I am not happy with people who are too busy. I feel out of their world.

One of my most interesting friends of a few years back was one with whom I loved to be, to talk to, and associate with. But he is now making a great deal of money. His business has expanded greatly—and he finds no time for the days that we used to have together. He has aged much. His face is drawn, and he has to go away every once in a while to rest up. At times recently when I have visited his office, he has seemed to begrudge the time for a few minutes of the most casual talk—so I now stay away! But I miss him.

Some day my friend is going to feel the loss of happy years. He is doing too much, or trying to, and lives each day under the false background of "too busy."

I like busy people, however, but those who work smoothly and have time for their friends, for recreation, for the handling of happy hobbies, and for restful meditation!

Talking with a friend from the West who visited New York recently, he told me of one of his friends who had just "seen" New York City for the first time, and he said that his friend told him that the most interesting thing about this marvel city was not its great buildings and its magic growth, but its people—the folks that swarmed the streets, visited the theatres and rode along the streets in their cars. They looked worried, in a great hurry—and not any too happy.

Too many engagements, not enough time in which to meet them all—and a shriveling of the finer elements in human nature. That is what this visitor from the wide, open West felt about the people who make up New York City.

It would be a good thing for the one who thinks that he is too busy, to take invoice as to what the net result of all this striving really amounts to.

SPORT CHAMPS FALLING FAST

Glenna Collett One Of Few To Retain Crown In Competitive Contests.

New York—(AP).—The boys usually wait until around the Christmas holidays to bang out a resume about the awful toll among the champions in the preceding 12 months.

But the mighty fell so early and so hard this season that a premature resume perhaps will be pardoned.

So many have fallen that about the only major sports champions who still have to walk the tight wire are Glenna Collett, queen o. woman golfers, and a few synthetic boxing queens.

Starting with the collapse of the New York Rangers, kings of 1928 hockey, the champion-breaking plague reached greatest momentum during the summer when it wiped out such 1928 greats as the Yankees, the California crew and Johnny Farrell. And then the mighty Bobby Jones was toppled.

These were the major casualties but among the tangled, title strewn wreckage are found Strangler Lewis, heavyweight wrestling czar; Reigh Count, 1928 Kentucky Derby winner, Joe Dundee, welterweight champion, Dazzy Vance, strike out wizard and premier 1928 pitcher and Goose Goslin, American league batting champion last year

Most of the big shots cracked so quickly that the finish wasn't even close

The Rangers never seriously threatened in the hockey race.

California, behind from the start at Poughkeepsie, sank with a mile to go

The Yankees were stopped almost before they got started

Johnny Farrell scarcely had time to warm up at Winged Foot before his national open crown flitted away.

Goose Goslin never was a threat in the American league batting race.

And Bobby Jones! The type "covering" his first round downfall in the national amateur is still hot

What a year for champions! The challengers simply turned things upside down. That's all. And that's plenty.

SPORT CHAMPS FALLING FAST

Glenna Collett One Of Few To Retain Crown In Competitive Contests.

New York—(AP).—The boys usually wait until around the Christmas holidays to bang out a resume about the awful toll among the champions in the preceding 12 months.

But the mighty fell so early and so hard this season that a premature resume perhaps will be pardoned.

So many have fallen that about the only major sports champions who still have to walk the tight wire are Glenna Collett, queen o. woman golfers, and a few synthetic boxing queens.

Starting with the collapse of the New York Rangers, kings of 1928 hockey, the champion-breaking plague reached greatest momentum during the summer when it wiped out such 1928 greats as the Yankees, the California crew and Johnny Farrell. And then the mighty Bobby Jones was toppled.

These were the major casualties but among the tangled, title strewn wreckage are found Strangler Lewis, heavyweight wrestling czar; Reigh Count, 1928 Kentucky Derby winner; Joe Dundee, welterweight champion; Dazzy Vance, strike out wizard and premier 1928 pitcher and Goose Goslin, American league batting champion last year.

Most of the big shots cracked so quickly that the finish wasn't even close.

The Rangers never seriously threatened in the hockey race.

California, behind from the start at Poughkeepsie, sank with a mile to go.

The Yankees were stopped almost before they got started.

Johnny Farrell scarcely had time to warm up at Winged Foot before his national open crown flitted away.

Goose Goslin never was a threat

Girl With Two Degrees Seeks Job

Evanston, Ill., (AP)—Georgiana in the American league batting race.

And Bobby Jones! The type "covering" his first round downfall in the national amateur is still hot.

What a year for champions! The challengers simply turned things upside down. That's all. And that's plenty.

looking for a job. A full-time, man-sized job, nothing less.

Georgiana is an engineer, with two degrees to prove it. She was graduated by Northwestern university this year a bachelor in civil engineering and a master in industrial engineering. The latter degree is the first Northwestern has granted.

She's not an ordinary sweet girl graduate—she stands 6 feet tall, is stocky and broad-shouldered.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEWS ADAMS

TOO BUSY

I HAVE noticed that people who are continually saying they are "too busy" wear a very worried expression on their faces. Stamped upon each line of their faces seem to glow the words: "I am doing too much."

I am not happy with people who are too busy. I feel out of their world.

One of my most interesting friends of a few years back was one with whom I loved to be, to talk to, and associate with. But he is now making a great deal of money. His business has expanded greatly—and he finds no time for the days that we used to have together. He has aged much. His face is drawn, and he has to go away every once in a while to rest up. At times recently when I have visited his office, he has seemed to begrudge the time for a few minutes of the most casual talk—so I now stay away! But I miss him.

Some day my friend is going to feel the loss of happy years. He is doing too much, or trying to, and lives each day under the false background of "too busy."

I like busy people, however, but those who work smoothly and have time for their friends, for recreation, for the handling of happy hobbies, and for restful meditation!

Talking with a friend from the West who visited New York recently, he told me of one of his friends who had just "seen" New York City for the first time, and he said that his friend told him that the most interesting thing about this marvel city was not its great buildings and its magic growth, but its people—the folks that swarmed the streets, visited the theatres and rode along the streets in their cars. They looked worried, in a great hurry—and not any too happy.

Too many engagements, not enough time in which to meet them all—and a shriveling of the finer elements in human nature. That is what this visitor from the wide, open West felt about the people who make up New York City.

It would be a good thing for the one who thinks that he is too busy, to take invoice as to what the net result of all this striving really amounts to.

THE PERFECT SOUND THEATRE

Thurs.—Fri.—Sat. Matinee Daily 2:15

Richard Barthelmess
IN

A sensation at $2 on Broadway. A bigger hit than "Weary River." Read what the New York papers said of this BIG show.

"Barthelmess' 'Drag' swell talkie at Warner Theatre. Dick's film rates four stars. What a break for our line of business yesterday! Deftly, subtly, realistically directed by Frank Lloyd, and extraordinarily acted by a simply perfect cast. 'My Song of the Nile,' certainly will be popular before long. Richard Barthelmess is simply swell."
—News.

"Another bull's-eye for Barthelmess. And Lila Lee. And First National. It is heartily recommended to the motion picture public. It's corking entertainment. Barthelmess is better than ever. There is a song which caused the first night audience to burst into spontaneous applause."
—American

"A First-rate movie. The entire cast is splendid Richard is charming as usual. It's great piece of work. It's a well-made, cleverly directed, excellently acted picture. First-class entertainment."
—Mirror

"Surprisingly sensible and effective, expertly produced and properly acted. Deserves considerable admiration. The star's portrayal is honest and likeable."
—Herald Tribune

"Quiet, dignified and honest. Richard Barthelmess and Frank Lloyd, the director, have done bravely in "Drag.' Both in dialogue and pantomine the film always attains realism and practically always retains interest. The acting is excellent.
—Morning World

"Faithful, intelligent and on the whole convincing drama with an idea. Mr. Frank Lloyd has done a grand job. Go right around to see it."
—Post

"Barthelmess scores the most interesting and entertaining vehicle he has since 'The Noose.' " Smoothly directed — splendidly acted — fine characterization. Best flicker drama turned out of First National Studios this year. Well worth viewing. There isn't a false note in the entire film. Directorial touches little short of genius."
—Graphic

"You are going to like his newest talking picture. It is one of those taut little plays that warms the heart and catches at the throat. The audience burst into handclapping. I should like to nominate it for a mythical Pultizer Prize for Talkies."
—Evening World

" 'Drag' is one of the few talking films that can lay claim to a certain welcome simplicity. It has its charms. It is high lighted by what are called 'human touches,' Showing that as the mechanical side of talking films grows into more pleasing certainties. Mr. Barthelmess seems on the road to a bigger and better life than he had in the silent photoplays. It is one of recently meritorious efforts of the talkies."
—Sun

"The theme song, 'My Song of the Nile,' mattered very much to us, for its lilt is contagious and the tune will be hummed and sung all through the Summer. Frank Lloyd has done an exceptionally good job."

" 'Drag' proves popular sound film. New Richard Barthelmess presentation provides a fine share of sound entertainment. 'Drag' is an infinitely superior product. A well knit, effectively presented scenario that kicks its heels in the face of coventional cinema fare. Gives a simple, straightforward impression of Main Street life. The characters are expertly cast and portrayed."

ANNOUNCING

The New WEAVER Automatic Wheel Alignment Indicator

One of the First Delivered in the State of Pennsylvania direct from the Show. Offered to the Motorists of Adams County.

HOW MUCH Is Incorrect Wheel Alignment

Costing You?

Any one of a dozen everyday occurrencies, such as pinching the curb in parking, impacts in traffic, driving in car tracks or ruts, or natural wear may throw your wheels out of alignment.

Misalignment causes excessive tire wear, waste of power and hard steering. Avoid these troubles by checking your alignment frequently on our NEW WEAVER WHEEL ALIGNMENT INDICATOR.

Simply Drive over the Indicator located in the front entrance — the hand on that dial shows number of feet per mile side-slip of tires, caused by incorrect wheel alignment.

We have installed this new machine for your benefit during state inspection period—Please use it!—There's no obligation on your part!

State Inspection October 1 to Nov. 15
